Excerpt from Address Delivered in Easton, Pa; August 18, 1841: On the Occasions of the Authors Inauguration as President of La Fayette College

Gentlemen: -The Board of Trustees of La Fayette College have selected you to fill the offices of President and Vice President of the Institution. In making the selections they were guided, as they believed, by a just estimate of the qualifications you possessed for those stations, and the more intimate acquaintance which they have since been enabled to form with you, has fully satisfied them that they have not been disappointed in their expectations. The learned and valuable citizen under whose charge the institution commenced its operations, and who presided over it for ten years, has been removed to another sphere of action, where, we have every reason to hope, his labors in the cause of sound morals, sound religion, and sound education, will be crowned with abundant success. He has left among us the savor of a good name, and to his indefatigable and untiring industry, in a great measure, is the institution indebted for the success which has attended her infant efforts. We believe that the times are propitious to the great work of education which we have in charge. The cause is steadily and rapidly progressing. The school master is emphatically abroad in our land. Public attention is fully alive to the subject, and its course can never be arrested. It never retrogrades among a virtuous and energetic people. Our own good Commonwealth has done much for the advancement of this cause; but she has never reaped the measure of praise which is her due, for her efforts to educate and enlighten her citizens. The venerable and philanthropic law-giver who founded our Commonwealth and gave it his name, in the preface to his frame of government made in 1682, says: Governments, like clocks, go from the motion men give them, and as governments are made and moved by men, so by them are they ruined too. Let men be good, and the government cannot be bad; if it be ill, they will cure it. But if men be bad, let government be never so good, they will endeavor to warp and spoil it to their turn.
